in sensing sound nina sun eidsheim offers a vibrational theory of music that radically re envisions how we think about sound music and listening eidsheim shows how sound music and listening are dynamic and contextually dependent rather than being fixed knowable and constant she uses twenty first century operas by juliana snapper meredith monk christopher cerrone and alba triana as case studies to challenge common assumptions about sound such as air being the default medium through which it travels and to demonstrate the importance a performance s location and reception play in its contingency by theorizing the voice as an object of knowledge and rejecting the notion of an a priori definition of sound eidsheim releases the voice from a constraining set of fixed concepts and meanings in eidsheim s theory music consists of aural tactile spatial physical material and vibrational sensations this expanded definition of music as manifested through material and personal relations suggests that we are all connected to each other in and through sound sensing sound will appeal to readers interested in sound studies new musicology contemporary opera and performance studies the book responds to the challenge of the global turn in the humanities from the perspective of art history a global art history it argues need not follow the logic of economic globalization nor seek to bring the entire world into its fold instead it draws on a theory of transculturation to explore key moments of an art history that can no longer be approached through a facile globalism how can art historical analysis theorize relationships of connectivity that have characterized cultures and regions across distances how can it meaningfully handle issues of commensurability or its absence among cultures by shifting the focus of enquiry to south asia the five meditations that make up this book seek to translate intellectual insights of experiences beyond euro america into globally intelligible analyses the radical postmodernist waves of experimentation that swept anglo american fiction from the late 1960s constitute a delayed response to the upheavals of the second world war yet the legacy of the war barely figures in prevalent accounts of the postmodernist movement as paul crosthwaite shows in this provocative book to recognize the significance of the war in contemporary culture is to acknowledge that postmodernism as a sensibility aesthetic style and mode of thought must be entirely reconceived challenging dominant theorizations of the postmodern as depthless and dehistoricized crosthwaite demonstrates that postmodernism has not abandoned history but has rather reformulated it in terms of trauma trauma that is traceable time and again to the catastrophes of the 1940s the book stages a revealing confrontation between influential theories of trauma and postmodernism and offers innovative close readings of key texts by virginia woolf thomas pynchon michael Moorcock j g ballard richard powers and ian mcewan
